

THE TIME IS NOW TO ORGANIZE FOR NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT:
Join us at the UN Nuclear Non-Proliferation Review Conference in May

With the announcement of the finalizing of the START 1 Follow On Treaty with Russia and its signing in April, public support for nuclear disarmament will be an important ingredient in the struggle for Senate ratification of the START treaty. With the opening of the UN Nuclear Non-Proliferation Review Conference in May, the times also call for more action by the Administration.

The nuclear disarmament movement needs to point the way out of the Bush era disarmament logjam. One way is organizing popular support for nuclear disarmament, with voices in the streets and petitions that lend support for nuclear abolition, "in our lifetime" as we mark the first anniversary of President Obama's Prague speech.

The 2010 NPT Review International Planning Committee (hundreds of US and international peace and disarmament groups www.peaceandjusticenow.org) has organized an international peace conference, as well as a rally, march and festival April 30 - May 2 in New York City bringing together thousands of nuclear disarmament activists from around the world to demand that the NPT Review Conference conclude with a commitment to the negotiations for a nuclear weapons abolition treaty.

In addition to the thousands of U.S. people who will participate, 2,000 Japanese activists, including more than 60 Hibakusha (A- and H- Bomb survivors), as well as delegations from around the world will be there, too.

Millions of petition signatures from Japan and around the world will be turned into the UN and the White House during the first week of the NPT Review Conference.

April 30 - May 1, an international strategy conference of over 800 participants, half internationals, will be held at Riverside Church.

May 2, an international rally, march and peace festival which will begin in Times Square at 1:30 PM and march to Dag Hamershold Plaza at the UN for a cultural festival and informational tabling.
